Joshua Reuben Clark Jr. was an American attorney, civil servant, and a prominent leader in the LDS church. In 1930, Clark was appointed United States Ambassador to Mexico. His Service and impact in international diplomacy was significant.

Based on the extracted text, the book mentioned is "J. Reuben Clark, Jr.: Diplomat and Statesman," which likely delves into his political and diplomatic roles and contributions. The text seems to emphasize his astute and shrewd nature as a diplomat, politician, and statesman.

The Clark: D. Michael Quinn J. Reuben Clark, Jr., Stand Fast by Our Constitution, Deseret Book Co., 1965, p. and the venerable Franklin, a diplomat, philosopher, scientist, and statesman. Reference to the character and statesmanship of George Washington is used to highlight his influence.

Institute for A Mormon Leaders Promotion of Peace - LewRockwell J. Reuben Clark, Jr., diplomat and statesman. Front Cover. Ray C. Hillam, Charles D. Tate, Laura Contents. 1. The Political Thought of President Clark. 15 Major J. Reuben Clark: Conflicted Patriot - J. Reuben Clark Law J. Reuben Clark, April 1937 General Conference Address. astute, and shrewd diplomats, politicians, and statesmen of all Europe are now planning to have The Constitution—A Glorious Standard - Ezra Taft Benson - LDS.org

The extract suggests a focus on J. Reuben Clark Jr.'s role as an astute diplomat and his significant contributions to the political and diplomatic landscape.

In 1930, Clark was appointed United States Ambassador to Mexico. His appointment highlights his role in international relations during that time.

In 1930, Clark was appointed United States Ambassador to Mexico. J. Reuben Clark - Inspired Constitution Joshua Reuben Clark Jr. September 1, 1871 – October 6, 1961 was an American attorney. In 1930, Clark was appointed United States Ambassador to Mexico. Utah: Brigham Young University Press, OCLC 11400420 Davis, Stephen S. 2001, J. Reuben Clark Jr.: Statesman and Counselor, in Winder, Michael K.,